The reasons why one must be passionate about one's work, are far less important than getting started on that path. If that is the case, then, the ultimate goal is to love what you are doing all throughout your career. So, what is the right way to go about it? 1. Set up a simple goal and stick to it. I can give my team credit because they played really well and it's tough when you're playing with certain guys and they get a bad bounce or something like that happens and I was a part of that. But that's one of those games when it
