So if you're interested in participating in the PlayStation 4 Beta, you can download the appropriate beta patch and start the console from there. Developer of the "God of War" series, last year's "Kratos Collection" and this year's "The Jackbox Party Pack 2," Cory Barlog, let the world know about the possibility of having a PlayStation 4 Beta on PC via the developer's Twitter account on Twitter. Although beta access is not yet available for everyone, the beta for the PC should be available for the same time as the console. With that in mind, perhaps there will be a few extra features for users who want to get involved. But now that beta access has been made available to the PC owners, it's time for those who are still waiting to get on the action. PS4 owners, are you excited to take part in the beta? More From NEWS.COM Thanks to the Xbox One, Sony's PlayStation 4 will soon be gaining the ability to play games online. "When the PlayStation 4 launches, you will get to do a lot more than playing games," said Sony's Andrew House. "You will access Netflix and other services in the home, and you will be able to browse the Web from the comfort of your own couch." In the past, online gaming has been a cost that could be passed onto the consumer, or a deal that could be made with a service. The PlayStation 4 will give gamers the ability to play online anytime they choose, and it comes at no cost

There is an object in the center of the screen and other object towards the right side. The object on the right side is really heavy. If this heavy object hits the screen border the script should stop the movement of that object and it should be thrown back. How do I prevent that object to move past the screen border? A: You'll need to set a Physics.IgnoreCollision on the part of the object you want to 'crash' to ignore its physics related collision with the other object. Q: React - defining children and className property in render function I would like to wrap some (which have children) and add the className to the child which I would like to handle later. However, this is impossible since the children of would be escaped by jsXTransformer, I cant define them with the className property and I would not be able to use the children property because of the escaped children. const Parent = () => Child1 Child2 class Child extends React.Component { render() { return ({this.props.children}); } } How can I achieve this? A: Use JSX function instead of spreading like this {...this.props.children} const Parent = () =>
